1ST ANNUAL ECO-MMUNITY DAY
AT LIVING GREEN NURSERY, SATURDAY AUGUST 7

Living Green Nursery and Garden Center in Lake Forest is hosting its first annual Eco-mmunity Day to cultivate community ties and foster environmental awareness. Everyone is invited to come out Saturday, August 7, from 11:00 am to 4:00 pm, to get their hands dirty and turn their thumbs green. This free event offers lots to do and learn, for both children and adults, with face painting, planting tables, food and beverages, demonstrations on composting, how to start a butterfly garden, recycling, pest and disease control for the garden, and more. Participants can take part in the “growing” phenomenon by helping Living Green plant a veggie and herb garden. Experts will be on hand to guide the process and offer valuable tips on planning, soil preparation, and complimentary planting. Jurassic Parties will be onsite to present an exciting, up-close experience with a variety of creatures and critters such as large snakes, lizards, frogs, tortoises, tarantulas and scorpions. “This is a great opportunity to get off the couch and in-touch with nature, and the community,” said Living Green owner, Joanna Perlman.

Living Green will also be offering several storewide specials and give-aways throughout the day.

Located just off the 5 and El Toro at 25290 Jeronimo Road in Lake Forest, Living Green is a full service nursery offering everything for the new and aspiring gardener, as well as the experienced landscape designer. A variety of educational and inspirational classes and workshops, for both adults and children, are led by qualified plant experts each month, and include Herb and Succulent Container Planting, Rose Care, Fruit Tree Planting and Pruning, and Mommy and Me. The goal at Living Green is to cultivate a new eco-mmunity by offering easy, affordable and sustainable garden and landscape solutions.
